

One night, the deep, airy tones of a wooden flute floated through Penny's dreams and stirred her awake. Penny slipped out of bed and followed the sound into the hallway and up toward the ceiling. As her eyes rested on the attic door, the fluting stopped.